Study rejects nuke dump idea

By FRANCES ABBITT

Appomattox County, in addition to 17 other counties in central and southside Virginia, is being considered as a host community for a low-level nuclear waste disposal facility.

The general lack of understanding of the whole issue of low-level nuclear waste, coupled with the rapid pace of this State's efforts to select such a site, prompted the Appomattox County Board of Supervisors to create a citizens' committee.

The purpose of the Appomattox County Low-Level Nuclear Waste Committee (ACLLNWC) was to study objectively the whole issue of low-level nuclear waste and its possible implications for Appomattox County.

The committee, composed of Bill Slagle, Jeanne Clabough, Paul Kvasnicka, Dennis Torrence, Kenneth Powell, Charles Turner and Robert Cordani, Jr. has had three official meetings, the minutes of which have been transmitted to the Appomattox County Board of Supervisors. In addition, one verbal report has been presented to the board along with two recommended courses of action, all of which have been made a part of the public record and with which the board has expressed its concurrence.

To date, the reports and recommendations have been concerned primarily with generalities of the siting process itself including the roles of various participants, such as citizen committees, citizens, and local governments.

The ACLLNWC, however, has also attempted to assess certain specific issues pertinent to low-level nuclear waste disposal. Toward this end sub-committees were created as follows: (1) Literature review; (2) Health Effects (3) Underground Containment and Alternate Disposal; (4) Economic Implications; and (5) Transportation Implications.

In summarizing their findings the ACLLNWC concludes that "the health, safety and economic risks associated with the location and operation of a low-level nuclear waste facility in Appomattox County significantly outweigh the benefits which may accure.

It is true that the health risks related to transportaton and disposal are not precisely known; however, it is believed that the anxiety and concern alone, in the absence of precise knowledge, must be considered a major negative factor.

It is also believed that the inability to control adequately the long-term economic effects outweighs the potential short-term economic benefits to Appomattox County. Furthermore, because "nuclear" is a developing technology, the ACLLNWC believes that research should concentrate on resolving the complex issue of residual (waste) disposal that this very essential technology produces, and that interim storage should be provided at or near the generating sources until research produces the answers and technology to solve this problem."

The Virginia Department of Health has announced an extension of the deadline for the selection of candidate sites in order to allow time for the evaluation of alternative waste management and disposal methods. It is anticipated that this study could take approximately one year to complete.

Among Appomatox County citizens, the general feeling seems to be of opposition to locating a low-level nuclear waste disposal facility in Appomattox County.

"I oppose it," said Mrs. Virginia Babcock, director of Appomattox Department of Social Services.

"I feel it is dangerous and would be a health hazard," she added.

J. A. Williams, Pamplin resident, said, "I don't know much about it, but I don't think it would be of any real help to our county in any way. I believe most other counties are objecting."

A HOUSE IN THE WESTERN END of Appomattox County was heavily damaged by fire Thursday. The two-alarm fire was first reported at 7:06 p.m. by A.W. Elliott, who resided in the home on Route 653. Units and men from the Concord Fire Department, the Concord Rescue Squad and the Appomattox Fire Department were on the scene to battle the blaze, which was fully involved when the first firefighting units from Concord arrived. The fire, which was contained by the volunteers within 30 minutes, heavily damaged most of the house, with the exception of the living room and a bedroom, as well as a smaller room behind the bedroom. Concord Fire Chief Tom Shupe said the blaze apparently resulted from heat which built up in the kitchen wall following a grease fire which was extinguished by the resident earlier that evening. Shupe added that some clothing and other personal items were saved from the burning two-story frame house, which is owned by Danny Cash. Shupe expressed his thanks to the Concord Rescue Squad and the Appomattox Fire Department for their help in fighting the blaze. (Photo by Jeff Spitzer)

Sewer project approved

The Appomattox Town Council voted at Tuesday night's meeting to proceed with construction for replacement of sewer lines and areation of the town waste water lagoon.

The sum of $70,000 has been earmarked for the inflow and infiltration project.

A request was presented and passed for "Resolution of Thanks" to the Appomattox Town Crew and Office Staff for their time and support during the Railroad Festival.

A proposal was made to have the Depot, the former Norfolk and Western Railroad terminal, placed on the Register of Virginia Landmarks.

Rescue squad nears goal

October has been Fund Drive Month for the Appomattox County Volunteer Rescue Squad. The month is almost over and the goal of $20,000 has not been met.

Approximately $2,800 more is needed to reach the goal that has been set.

If you have not given or if you can give more, please see one of the squad members or mail your contribution in to ACVRS, P.O. Box 57, Appomattox, Virginia 24522.

Vaughan elected C-of-C president

W. Lloyd Vaughan, president of Appomattox Office Supplies, Inc., was elected president of the Appomattox County Chamber of Commerce by the chamber's board of directors at their monthly meeting Monday night.

Vaughan, who has served as a member of the board of directors since the Chamber was revitalized in March of 1982, replaces Jim Nolen, who served as president since the chamber was revitalized.

Nolen's term as a member of the board of directors expires at the end of this month, and he announced two months ago that he would not accept nomination to another term on the chamber's governing board.

At the fall general membership meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday, three new directors were elected and Bob Jamerson was reelected to another term on the board of directors. The new directors are Francis Elliott, Bill Allen Burks and Terrie Conrad. They replace Steve Marshall, Doug Webb and Jim Nolen.

Besides Vaughan, officers elected Monday night to serve during coming year include Gerald Wilbun, vice president; Bob Jamerson, treasurer, and Peggy Romanac, secretary.

The board of directors elected Mrs. Romanac to fill the unexpired portion of Geraldine Marshall's term on the board. Mrs. Marshall, who had served as the board's secretary, submitted a letter of resignation earlier this month. Mrs. Romanac, who served as the chamber's secretary since it was revitalized in 1982, will now serve also as the official secretary on the board of directors.

Nolen, cited by the board members as the person most responsible for leading the Appomattox County Chamber of Commerce back to a position of prominence in the community, said Monday night that it has been "a privilege and a pleasure" to serve the community through the Chamber of Commerce.

He added that the outgoing directors, as well as those remaining on the board, have been instrumental in the progress of the chamber during the past year and a half.

He added that he would "encourage the board members to stay at it, and not let the chamber falter."

Nolen said that he would like to see the chamber "communicate more with the general membership, and involve the members more, since we do have a strong foothold in the community now. I do think that Lloyd Vaughan can do that."

Vaughan said of his election to the presidency that he is "looking forward to continuing work on improving and enlarging the chamber, and making it a more vital part of the progress of our community."

In other business at Monday evening's board of directors meeting, board members voted to authorize Bill Slagle to make arrangements for having the county business directory printed.

Slagle noted that the directory was essentially ready to go to press, and the directory committee had decided to print 1,000 copies or less, so that the document would be re-printed in a relatively short period of time with updated information.

Slagle said that the committee is finding businesses which are not listed in the directory, so a page will be included in the final printed product which will allow businesses to submit their names for inclusion in the second printing of the directory.

Board members also voted to launch a campaign aimed at keeping shoppers in the county of Appomattox.

Board member Jack Evans suggested that the campaign consist of promotional advertising combined with published material illustrating the importance and benefits of supporting the local economy.

Lions plan observance

The Appomattox Lions Club will mark their 44th anniversary this Thursday night, Oct. 27, during the club's Ladies Night activities at the Appomattox County High School.

The Ladies Night meeting is scheduled to begin at 6:45. A program of music will be provided by the Appomattox County High School Chorale.

During the 44th anniversary observance, the club will honor two of its members who joined the club when it was formed and are still active, the Hon. W.M. Abbitt, Sr., and Dr. Clyde G. O'Brien.

Wilson wins grid contest

John H. Wilson of Appomattox has been named winner of last week's Times-Virginian Football Contest.

Wilson missed accurately predicting only two games in the contest. He will receive a check for $20 as his first place prize.

Tied for second place were Doris Bryant, Curtis T. Mayberry, Dolly Mayberry, and George W. Almond, all of Appomattox. Each of the above four people missed accurately predicting only three games in the contest.

Going to the tie-breaker for a winner, Dolly Mayberry, with a point spread of 46 points, has been declared the winner of second place. She will receive a check for $10 as second place prize.

The contest continues this week with full details of rules and prizes on an inside page of this issue of the paper.

Thanks to our fine Extension Agent, James Smith, for bringing me a copy of the famous Emporia, Kansas, Gazette, Vol. 94, No. 98. William Allen White was editor and publisher of The Gazette and made it one of the most respected and quoted newspapers in the nation. Born in 1868, he died in 1944. His son, William Lindsay White, ran the paper from 1944 to 1973. Bro. Smith was in Kansas to attend an agricultural session. Jim is widely recognized as one of the top Extension leaders.

At a gathering here Thursday evening had occasion to meet and chat with Mr. and Mrs. John L. Pachuta and son of Baltimore, Md My college roommate lived in Baltimore and I used to visit him there. Remember those row houses with white wooden steps to the brick sidewalk. We even chatted about the old Hippodrome Theatre.

Sunday was featured by sensational world news and exciting football. I will leave the world situation to those in authority and trust our leadership. In football most of us watched the Washington Redskins win over Detroit. And in that game Redskin star John Riggins was out with injuries and that gave young Reggie Evans a chance to star, making three touchdowns. Ah yes, and Evans, from near Yorktown, Virginia came up to the pros from my alma mater, University of Richmond. On weekends, football really takes over. The game demands perfection in team work, compiled with individual skills, a winning combination most anyplace. Yes sir, Slippery Rock 17, Lock Haven St. 0. ACHS is still weakened by injuries. Lost to Brookville. But hope springs eternal and let us stand by the Red and the Blue.

Pleasant surprise. Met a fine young man last week and he is now in our area, a grad of Georgia Tech and member of my college fraternity, Sigma Phi Epsilon. I forgot to write down his name, so I owe him one.

A few years ago it became popular for men to wear caps. Someone even gave me one. Of late I have noticed that the cap is even more popular. Yes, and saw a lady wearing a cap. Before many more weeks we will be getting out our stocking cap.

State highway deaths are running about thirty more than same day last year.

Thanks for reading and sedeya around.

Town trash pickup set

The Town of Appomattox trash trucks will pick up brush from town residents' homes during the period between Oct. 31 and Nov. 4, according to town spokesman Harold Nash.

The brush should be cut into sections no longer than six feet, and residents should put it on the street line in order for the town workers to pick it up and put it on the trash truck.

After the brush is prepared by the town resident for disposal, the resident should call the Appomattox Town Office at 352-8268 and request that the brush be picked up.
